

New mark labels make product identification easy!

Recently at HMF Express, we set out to fix one of your major complaints. To paraphrase, one customer told us: "your mark labels stink."

To improve the label we settled on a label that is water resistant, adheres without leaving residue, is clear and legible, and handles extreme processing temperatures. The new label is pasted in the throat of every stick that we produce.

See the below layout of the new label. The new label contains customer name and PO# information on the top line. The next lines contain our internal tracking numbers.

The "Item" # on the third line is our sales order item #. That number is also listed in the description field for each line in your packing list. So this item # helps you to check-in the material you receive. Just be careful to note that this Item # is in the description field of the packing list. It is NOT the packing list Line #.

The bottom line of the label contains the handing (if any) and the Mark # you specified. If you did not specify a Mark #, a generic mark # will be printed in this location.
